

Conflict of Minerals Policy

Section 1502 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform Act of 2010 requires certain publicly traded companies to annually file a report with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) disclosing the source and chain of custody of conflict minerals (3TG) in its products.

It is the Policy of Innovative Power Products (IPP) to purchase from suppliers that source materials responsibly. IPP's suppliers are expected to provide credible assurances that they are not securing Tin, Tungsten, Tantalum, Gold, or their derivatives (3TG) from Conflict sources. This means that they must identify their sources of supply as being recycle / scrap sources, sources located outside the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), and the adjoining countries or inside the DRC but from mines documented as not supporting or financing conflict resulting in human rights abuses. This policy among other procedures establishes the framework by which IPP obtains the necessary information from suppliers and to provide its customers the information necessary to meet their reporting obligation.

IPP is committed to transparency in the implementation of this policy by making available reports on our progress to relevant stakeholders.
